1. Alba Vega, Carlos and Ilán Bizberg (Coords.). DIMENSIONES SOCIOPOLÍTICAS Y ECONÓMICAS DE LA CRISIS GLOBAL Y SU IMPACTO EN LOS PAÍSES EMERGENTES. México, D.F.: El Colegio de México, Centro de Estudios Internacionales, Institut de Recherche pour le Développement, 2017. 499p., maps, graphics, bibl., wrps. New. Paperback. ISBN: 9786076281345.

"Dimensiones sociopolíticas y económicas de la crisis global y su impacto en los países emergentes" examines economic crises in developing regions and countries, particularly Latin America during the 1980s, Mexico in 1995, Southeast Asia and Russia in 1998, and more. These crises point to the progressive displacement of the world economy's center of gravity. As such, the writers and specialists in this work also examine the interdependencies between different economic centers of the world, and the effects of crises on developing countries; they also study the relationships between China and various Latin American countries, as well as the impact of globalization on everything from economic to socio-political issues. Contents include: "Formas de capitalismo, América Latina y el sistema internacional después de la gran crisis", "La crisis económica global como indicador de la existencia de diferentes tipos de capitalismo en América Latina", "Las colusiones corruptivas como fundamento de la crisis del capitalismo financiero", "Los países emergentes a prueba de crisis: el futuro incierto para una noción controvertida", "Rupturas y continuidades en las relaciones laborales: evidencias en Argentina, Brasil y México", "Repensar la formas de trabajo y de las organizaciones de los trabajadores en América Latina", "El estado desarrollista en Brasil: crisis, continuidad, incertidumbres", "América: entre Estados Unidos y China", "Boom agrícola y persistencia de la pobreza rural en México" and "Desarrollo socioeconómico, inclusión política y participación electoral: las paradojas del sufragio universal en México y América Central.

7. Bebbington, Anthony; Javier Escobal; Isidro Soloaga and Andrés Tomaselli (Ed.). TRAMPAS TERRITORIALES DE POBREZA, DESIGUALDAD Y BAJA MOVILIDAD SOCIAL: LOS CASOS DE CHILE, MÉXICO Y PERÚ. México, D.F: Centro de Estudios Espinosa Yglesias , RIMISP, Universidad Iberoamericana, 2016. 386p., maps, tables, graphics, bibl., index, wrps. New . Paperback. ISBN: 9786078036455.

Recent studies show that poverty, inequality and low social mobility have a geographical dimension, leading to extreme vulnerability for large sections of the population that face limited opportunities to get out of their situations. "Trampas territoriales de pobreza, desigualdad y baja movilidad social" studies key indicators of well-being with a level of spatial disaggregation not previously available in Latin America, analyzing the factors that keep social statuses static in Chile, Mexico and Peru. Through a rigorous quantitative analysis, the work identifies the main "operational constraints" -- economic, institutional and political factors -- that prevent inclusive growth in these countries. Contents include: "Trampas territoriales de pobreza y desigualdad -- síntesis de resultados", "Pobreza, vulnerabilidad y oportunidades en los territorios funcionales chilenos", "Arreglos político-institucionales para la superación de trampas localizadas de pobreza monetaria: Los territorios de Cauquenes y constitución en la región del Maule en Chile", "Trampas de pobreza y desigualdad en México: 1990-2000-2010", "Restricciones y trampas al crecimiento territorial: Los municipios de Santa Isabel Cholula y de Tianguismanalco en el estado de Puebla, México", "Trampas territoriales de pobreza y desigualdad en el Perú" and "Restricciones y trampas al crecimiento territorial -- el caso de dos territorios andinos del Perú".

The alliance between Spain and France to support the independence of the Anglo-American settlers led to Charles III declaring war on Britain in 1779. The conflagration transformed New Spain's commerce with the Philippines, the Antilles and, in particular, the Spanish-American Pacific. In "Donativos, préstamos y privilegios", Guillermina del Valle Pavón analyzes the benefits obtained by merchants from Mexico City who exchanged European and Asian goods for Guayaquil and Andean silver during the conflict. He also examines the way in which New Spain silver served to strengthen the Royal Navy and defray the costs of military campaigns in the Caribbean. Contents include: "Donativos para financiar la armada y el conflicto bélico", "El libre comercio por el Pacífico hispanoamericano, 1774-1783" and "Suplementos, empréstitos y contraprestaciones".

New. Paperback. ISBN: 9786076281185.

"La desamortización civil desde perspectivas plurales" is a historiography on Mexican agrarian policy, specifically centering around new property confiscation laws in 1856 and liberal agrarian policies, which radically impacted towns and municipalities during the time. The main objective of these reformatations was to end the old collective rights over land, water and forests in order to consolidate private property, which was considered essential for the development of the countryside, fiscal disentanglement and administrative control of the nation. Contents include: "Litigios, justicia y actores colectivos. Componentes a la desamortización en el Estado de México, 1856-1910", "La desamortización civil en los Valles Centrales de Oaxaca en la segunda mitad del siglo XIX, 1856-1905: ¿simulación o realidad?", "Mecánica social del cambio institucional. New . Paperback. ISBN: 9786075251936.

"Religión, historia y sociedad en las luchas por la naturaleza" is a collection of reflections on religion, history and society in the context of ecological issues, presented at the First International Colloquium, "History, Society and Religion", in honor of Dr. Pedro F. Hernández Ornelas. The set of works integrates the critical rigor of the social sciences with the emancipatory radicalism of liberation philosophy and theology, as well as indigenous worldviews, while simultaneously highlighting the contradictions of the Catholic Church. The various authors also analyze the inner dialectic of truth-seeking, set against the domination of empirical models of power and institutionalization. Contents include: "Posmodernidad y extravío ante el eclipse de Dios. Ciencia y fe en el conocimiento humano desde la sociología de la religión", "Pensamiento crítico y escena genérica contra la violencia", "Las raíces culturales del arte", "La teología de la liberación como antecedente geo-epistémico de la crítica decolonial", "Trabajo, ecología política y religión", Religiosidad indígena y luchas socio-ambientales: Hacia una arqueología de los lugares sagrados en Guatemala", "Sobre la relación entre religión y decisiones microeconómicas: un estudio en torno al caso Cartagena de indias, Colombia (2013)", "El paganismo metafórico como respuesta al cristianismo secular occidental" and "Morir hoy, remanentes teológicos negativos en el culto a la Santa Muerte".

Sacred royalty has been a common practice throughout history; Mexico utilized this system during Mayan rule, but it is generally considered that the colonial period opened an accelerated process of secularization for indigenous societies. In opposition to this mainstream thought, "La realeza sagrada en México (siglos XVI-XXI)" argues that the sacred royalty system did not disappear with the Spanish conquest. Author Daniéle Dehouve examines the survival of this system throughout colonial times and in contemporary indigenous communities, examining its capacity for adaption. This work is divided into 11 parts: "Las teorías sobre la organización social indígena", "El sistema de realeza sagrada", "El soberano Mexica y sus funciones", "El soberano Mexica y sus divinidades", "Los altos personajes Mexicas", "Entronizaciones en el siglo XVI", "Las características de la realeza Mexica", "Dualidades coloniales", "El gobernante en el sistema político contemporáneo", "Las réplicas periféricas" and "Permanencia de la entronización".

"¿Una inquisición constitucional?" examines archbishop of Mexico Antonio de Bergosa y Jordán's judicial activity regarding religion between 1813 and 1814. After the suppression of the Inquisition of Mexico, the archbishop established a court that protected religion in compliance with the provisions of the Congress of Cadiz. This establishment applied judicial methods that were more just, contrary to the despotic ones of the Inquisition. In this work, author José Luis Quezada Lara highlights how the liberal ideas of the Spanish Cortes were applied in the dioceses of New Spain, as well as the way in which the bishops of the viceroyalty tried to censor books and to follow causes of faith in the period of crisis of the Spanish monarchy. In 2015 this work won the Luis González y González National Prize for the best thesis in the social sciences and humanities, awarded by the Colegio de Michoacán, as well as the Francisco Xavier Clavijero Prize in the area of history, awarded by the National Institute of Anthropology and History.

Many of the current characteristics of prostitution are the result of a long historical process that began more than a century ago, when the state acquired almost exclusive control over the practice, and industrial capitalism transformed it definitively. Linking the present with the past and constructing the future, "Prostitución y lenocinio en México, siglos XIX y XX" offers an analysis to better understand prostitution as a complex phenomenon that carries grave consequences for women -- including male violence and vulnerability to disease. Framing this activity as a trade in which women's bodies are commodities, these essays also explore how prostitution reinforces gender differences and corruption, and examines relevant speeches and policies throughout the history of Mexico, unraveling the practice as both a social problem and a legal one. Contents include: "La prostitución como un 'mal necesario'", "La expansión del reglamentarismo", "El camino hacia un abolicionismo de estado" and "Cambios y continuidades en la segunda mitad del siglo XX".

"La sombra voluntaria" examines social norms regarding women's labor participation, and how it impacts their well-being overall. Author Arlette Covarrubias Feregrino specifically presents data from two towns in Tehuacán, Puebla: Santiago Miuhuatlán and San Gabriel Chilac. Following the Free Commerce Treaty in 1994, these towns installed textile factories, which mainly employed women. As such, Feregrino was able to analyze the trajectory of changing social norms in the region. This work is divided into six main parts: "Enfoque de Capacidades y perspectivas conceptuales de las normas sociales y la participación laboral femenina", "Características económicas, demográficas y de viviendas de Tehuacán", "Argumentos morales que sustentan la norma social que indica que las mujeres casadas no deben trabajar en la maquila", "Bienestar de las mujeres casadas que trabajan en la maquila", "El efecto de la internalización en la propensión de las mujeres a participar en empleo remunerado" and "El efecto de las sanciones sociales sobre la propensión de las mujeres casadas a participar en el empleo asalariado".
